Review Summary

- The National Institute of Technology (NIT) offers a safe and supportive learning environment where most learners develop knowledge and vocational skills and achieve their qualifications on time.
- NIT's strengths include learners' assessment and achievement and the support and guidance provided to learners throughout their learning journey.
- As noted in a few training sessions, NIT still needs to improve the ways of accommodating the learners' different levels of knowledge and skills.
- NIT uses a continuous self-assessment process to learn about its performance and maintain a clear strategic direction for improvement. NIT's next step for further improvement would be to better utlise the outcomes of the self-assessments in the strategic plan.
- NIT is graded 'Good' in all Aspects during its recent review and will develop an action plan based on the review's recommendations to enhance its performance further.
