Directorate of Government Schools Reviews

The Directorate of Government Schools Reviews (DGS) is part of the National Authority for Qualifications and Quality Assurance of Education and Training (QQA) that was officially set up in 2008 as an independent body governed and supervised by the Council of Ministers. It is established to raise standards in education and training.

The DGS is responsible for:

- evaluating and reporting on the quality of provision in all government schools
- establishing success measures
- spreading best practice
- making recommendations for government school improvements.

Review involves monitoring standards and evaluating the quality of provision against a clear set of indicators. The reviews are independent, objective and transparent. They provide important information for government schools about their strengths and areas for improvement to assist in focusing efforts and resources as part of the cycle of school improvement in order to raise standards.

Review grades are awarded a four-point scale:

| Grade description | Interpretation |
|--------------------------|--|
| Outstanding (1) | Outcomes or provision are at least good in all areas and outstanding in the majority. |
| Good (2) | Outcomes or provision are at least satisfactory in all areas and good in the majority. |
| Satisfactory (3) | A basic level of adequacy. There are no major weaknesses, or the majority of areas are satisfactory. Some areas may be good. |
| Inadequate (4) | There are major weaknesses or the majority of areas are inadequate. |

Introduction

This review was conducted over three days by a team of eleven reviewers. During the review, reviewers observed lessons and other activities, examined students' written and other work, analysed data concerning the school's performance and other documents, and talked with staff, students and parents. This report summarises their findings and recommendations.

Review judgements

Overall effectiveness

- How effective is the school in meeting the needs of students and their parents?

Grade: 3 Satisfactory

Overall effectiveness is satisfactory, down from good in the December 2009 review. This is attributed to variation in students' academic achievement and inconsistent teaching and learning strategies in both cycles, and the assessment techniques which do not meet students' needs. Students' proficiency levels in basic skills are inconsistent and their academic achievement is not sufficiently focused, due to the variation in both monitoring the impact of professional development programmes on teachers' performance and the effectiveness of educational support for different age groups. The school exerts efforts to promote positive values and induct fresh students well. Most students enthusiastically participate in the extra-curricular activities, demonstrate awareness of their roles and work together in harmony. Students and parents are well satisfied with the school's provision.

- How strong is the school's capacity to improve?

Grade: 3 Satisfactory

Capacity to improve is satisfactory, down from good in the previous review. The strategic plan, based on self-assessment and analysis of the school's current situation, includes performance indicators; however, its impact is inconsistently reflected on all aspects of school work. It focuses on promoting students' positive values, offering them opportunity to engage in varied extra-curricular activities, increasing their awareness of roles and responsibilities, and making them feel safe and secure. However, lack of core subjects senior teachers results in varied levels of proficiency in basic skills. This is amplified by the inconsistent performance of teachers and the increase in the number of students, particularly those whose mother tongue is not Arabic. All these challenges facing the school affect its capacity to improve. The school requires greater efforts to raise its overall effectiveness.

The school's main strengths

- Students' participation in the varied extra-curricular activities, awareness of their roles and responsibilities, sense of security and safety, and getting along together
- Support and guidance programmes that promote positive values
- Induction programmes that help fresh students to settle in.

Recommendations

In order to improve, the school should:

- raise students' academic achievement in core subjects
- improve the teaching and learning processes, to include:
 - employing more effective teaching and learning strategies
 - using effective assessment techniques to meet students' educational needs.
- provide educational support for the different levels of students, inside and outside lessons
- develop more effective mechanisms to monitor the impact of professional development programmes on teachers' performance, so ensuring that students achieve academic progress during lessons.
